HOW TO WALK WELL.

Take to Shoes with Low, Square Heels and Ample Toe Room.

A writer in the Phenological Journal gives the following advice, in an article entitled "How to Walk Well." "A great deal depends," he says, "on shoe leather, if we would get comfort and avoid injury. We are in a lively climate, which does not encourage us to wear the beautiful, sensible sandals of the Greeks and Hebrews. It was the advice of an unforgotten young soldier to our marching volunteers of the civil war, 'Trust in God, but keep your shoes easy.' We must not have errors in our premises; a corn is a fatal error to a walker. Therefore take to square, low heels, wide soles, and ample toe room. Wear loose, short, warm clothes, if the weather be cold, but heavy ones never.

"Light flannel is capital, all the year around. Caps are better than hats, by land as by sea, for the wind can not catch at them. One's stockings are apt to bunch and feel uncomfortable on a long tramp.
But if, before starting, you soak your feet, fore and aft, so that they are eased in lather, they will keep cool and easy under you from morning till night. 'Break an egg in your boots!' said James T. Fields, who was a boy all his life. But whichever you do, you will find it a great help and convenience, though the prescription may seem queer to a novice."

WOMEN BLACKSMITHS.

Hard Lot of the Female Tanners at the Anvil in England.

From Birmingham I went on about fifteen miles to Dudley, or what is known as the Black Country, and it is rightly named.
Both in appearance and the conditions of its people, a blacker, more dreary life could not be. As writes Mrs. Leonora Barry, in the Pictorial Review. It is the property of Lord Dudley. The ill-fated Johnstown, of Pennsylvania, did not present a more pitiful appearance after its fearful disaster than does this landed property of a Lord. The country is divided into little hamlets bearing such burlesque names as Thibbets's Gardens, Cinder Bank, Primrose Hill, Netherthorn Ruins (very appropriate), Cordley Heath, etc.

A description of one of these places will suffice for all. Thibbets's Gardens is a miserable, grimy, dirty, with little hovels built along its one foul-smelling street, over which all sewage matter from roof and kitchen has cut little ditches. At the back of every dwelling, and included as a part of the rent, is a forge with fire-place sufficient for one or more anvils. Here, at these anvils, the women and children of this poverty-stricken locality stand day after day, until months roll into years, and years into a lifetime, swinging hammer and tongs, welding into every link of chain their health, comfort and happiness. The dolorous sound of the hammer and anvil, used by the mothers, is welded into every nerve and fiber of the unborn babe, and after its birth it is lulled to sleep by the same mournful cadence, and its little body rests on the big bellows, or swings in the rude cradle that hangs from the rafters.

Nails, such as are used in the bottoms of ships, hobnails for heels and soles of shoes, and chains of different sizes, Nos. 1/2, 3/4, and 1, are the sizes made by these women, some of whom are over sixty years old.
The iron rod is brought from the factories in coils and the women have to straighten it out preparatory to using. They get 112 pounds of iron rod at a batch. They are allowed eight pounds for waste, and must be accountable for the balance.

Chainmakers, by working steadily, make 15 pence per day, which equals 36 cents American money. The rent of a house of two rooms, with forge and two anvils, is 2 shillings and 9 pence per week (60 cents).
One good woman, of whom the clergyman who accompanied us spoke very highly, said she had lived in one house and worked at one forge for seventeen years, and in that time no repairs had been made except such as were paid out of her own earnings. The husbands and fathers of these chain and nail-making women are miners, working for such a miserable pittance that it is absolutely necessary for the mother, wife and daughter to live this cruel life.

The Gambler's Last Bet.

Nobody but a gambler would think of betting on his own life, says the Cincinnati Times-Star. Bony Nash, a well-known character of the gambling fraternity, died about fifteen years ago of a dropsical affection. While he was in a decline his companions subscribed to send him to Louisville. Billy Lewis was appealed to for $5.
"Five dollars!" exclaimed the old man. "I'll give $5. We'll send him to New Orleans and he can't get back." Bony, however, went to the Falls City, and in a few days returned looking much improved. Jim Ruffin was then chief of police. "Hello, Bony," exclaimed the chief on meeting Nash one day. "You are looking much better; you'll live ten years longer." This occurred Tuesday. "I'll bet $5 I'll be dead before Saturday," said Bony. "I'll take it," said the chief, and the money was put up. So died before noon of Friday.
